The delay in securing the requisite num-ber of signers to the call is owing to the absence on account of sickness of J. S. Car-penter, of Duichess county. There are 47 against him, leaving 11 doubtful. The rity of 105 is 53 and the Conklingites It is said that they will get those and call a caucus for Monday night. Then if the adstrationists will not go into a caucus, ministrationists will not go into a caucus, and will not make 53 81 in the election, they will have to take the responsibily of turning against the party of the state, and the Conkingitses will have to devote themselves to breaking the deadlock. How this is to be done it is too soon now to indicate. The usual resolution for recess to Monday evening was offered in the assembly, but at the request of Speaker Sharpe it was laid aside, as he said there ought to be some committation before action. then Conking will claim the election It something like this is effected. Conkling will go right to hard work to make stalwart sentiment assert itself in every locality and for every officer to be nominated and elected. This senator says Conkling will endeavor to defer thesenatorial election because he cannot muster force to win now, and should the legislature take a recess. Conkling could do much during that recess. This senator further says that the republicans of New York are anything but confident of carrying the election next fall; that to postpone the senatorial election takes the issue into the convass and divides the party, while the denocrate seem inclined to heal up their past differences. Secretary Blaine was in New York to attend the meeting of the directors of the Richmond and Allegheny railroad. Blaine is a member of the board of directors, and interested in the enterprise. This was the business which took him to New York to attend the meeting of the Conkling contest. He received numer out telegrams from New York democrats on the subject of democratic policy, and finally concluded to go on the ground himself. He favors getting one democratic sensitor if that can be secomplished, and next to that preventing the election by this legislature. If, however, the election is forced. Randall prefers the sending of Conkling back to any other republican. If it coances to a choice of a republican, the democrate will no doubt smpport Conkling. This is a treed by every democratic senator have gone to New York to impress this policy on their party.

Washington, May 27 — Another conference of he Virginia readjusters was held here last nigh get any promise from the administration of patrocage for use in the campaign. The president and Secretary Blaine have both expressed them selves in favor of the maintenance of the regular republican organization in Virginia. Mahone called on Bob Ingersoli this morning to get his influence with the administration in favor of the union of the republicans and readjusters, but the trouble seems to be, as stated by the republicans, that the readjusters want to control the federal patrocage, and to fill the state ticket with men of that party. Some democratic readjusters, it is said, are opposed to supporting a mixed state ticket, and they want republican votes for the readjust r ticket. Besides there are numerous leading republicans of Virginia who oppose the coalition, and warn the administration that its mode will disrupt the republican party in that state for good.

To this Mr. Carmichael affixed his signature and address in due form, and no doubt expected to receive by return mail a copy of the salty oration for which his bucolic soul had panted. We are surprised that there are not many eastern corporations anxious to make subscriptions of $1,000 or $5,00 each if for nothing else in order to mainain their standing as the largest consumers of raw cotton, and to encourage the planters to look to them as the most appreciative market for the finest and best prepared cotton staple.

New York Tritung.

We hope that General Arthur has some friend sufficiently intimate and sufficiently judicious to tell him that his conduct for the last few days has been flagrantly wanting in that dignify and propriety which the people of the United States have the right to expect from the vice president. He came away from Washington in the train of two gentlemen, private citizens of this state, who resigned their places in the genate on discovering that they could not control it. They prought the president of the senate with them, to asking them in an effort to coerce, copie or corruptenough members of the legislature to return them to a republican senate which they had insulted by resignation, for the purpose of making war upon a republican senate which they had insulted by resignation, for the purpose of making war upon a republican president. They called a conference of politicians in this city, which was held last signiday—in deflance of the commonst considerations of official decency at the residence of the vice president, Tigen ag if his person and his high office had not yet bean suajectuly degraded by these uses, they dragged him up to Albany to take part in an undignified struggle in the loobles of the state house and the corridors of the hotels is the interest of these two desperate politicians seeking re-election.

Immigration,

There can be no fairer method of estimatic the advantages of an efficient board of immignation than 10 compare the condition of the states which have needleedly it. As example take Georgia, the most prosperous solutions with those which have needleedly it. As example take Georgia, the most prosperous solutions as with Ohio, the leading state of the west. Georgias an area of 58,00 requare miles, and thoug one of the original thirteen states, in 1870 had by little over one million inhabitants, and the wall of its manufactured articles was $80,000,00 close only 39,000 square miles, had in that year a population of 1,660,000, and the value of her manufactured orders was $800,000,00. In agriculture products she excelled Georgia in almost as gree a proportion as her manufactured articles. But we have fallen behind indiana, lithiots, Missouri lows, and even bleak and frozen Michigan-which only became a grate in 1897—both in population and wealth.

All these maneuvers of the republicans at Al bany and at Washington ought to be of peculia interest to the democrats. They are so many signs of democralization and disintegration. If considerable faction of a party refuses to go introduced it is because it is determined not to bunder obligation to obey the will of the majority of the party and is sirredy in a quastindependent position. If its position is so far independent to the termined to the position of the party and is sirredy in a quastindependent position. If its position is so far independent position are already acquired a separate party and in the property of the party of th dent position. If its position is so far independent that it has already acquired a separade party name the fact is of yet more moment. In de-termining action on public concerns the majority must rule at the polic; in determining party action on disputed points the majority within the party should also rule, and if it does not the party must go to pieces.

"Want that."

"Oh, none of the ladies ever wear anything," was the response, in an expostulatory tone.

Well it wouldn't do to kick against the fashion, and I allowed myself to be pushed into the bath room. What a sight met my astonished eye! About 150 utterly nude women were in that big room, lounging in willow chairs and sofas walking about, chatting with acquaintances and perspiring like squeez-d sponges. The temperature was 120, the dry heat pouring in from registers on all sides. I was awfully ashamed at first, but the unconcern of the great majority gradually reassured me, and at length I ventured out of the corner in which I had taken refuge.

The scene would have disenchanted, I vow, the most ardent admirers of my sex. There were many comely bathers, to be sure, with fine forms and smooth, white skins, but the revelation of hollow-chested maids and flabby matrons, of spindle shanks and bairy arms, or corns and bunions, and of various unshapeliness, was something beyond my power or desire of description. An old walrus of a woman waddled her red three hundred pounds about with a lank, rib-displaying wearer of eyeglasses. I saw several persons whom I had seen before, and, bless me, how altered they looked without clothes! One of these was the popular leading actress of a theatrical company, and I knew her by sight, because of having seen her half undressed on the stage. Somebody called me by name and I with considerably greater difficulty reorgnized the face of an acquaintance. Perhaps that assemblage was not fairly representative, but, taking it as a standard, not more than one in ten of us is reasonably good in finery, and not one in fifty would do for statuary. The best figure in the lot was that of a woman who could not have been less than 45 years old, and it was perfection itself in every curve and proportion; but, as a rule, the women of 25 to 30 excelled in form, the younger ones being scrawny, and the older ones either gaunt or flabby. As for the cute little aprons, sashes and rudimentary skirts w worn, though rarely, by parties of swell women when they hire the whole establishment for their exclusive selves), not a shred was to be seen. The only wearers of anything were the dozen attendants, all slender, sprightly young women. Each had a towel wrapped around her body from waist to hips, another over one shoulder and across the breast to the concessite arminit and a third wound turbage.

one shouder and across the breast to the opposite amplit, and a third wound turban-like around the head. They looked jaunty and, agreeable. It was their task to show bathers how to use the cold water douches, pools and showers, and to scrub them with brushes as they lay on marble tables. I like the bath well enough, but I am sorry I saw the naked women, for they somewhat disenchanted me.

The Reason Why.

—Prince Allessandro Torlonia, of Rome, believes in practical charity. He keeps two doctors especially to attend poor families who have a horor of hospitals; he entirely provides for 300 children and educates 350 more; and he has established an asylum for old people and a hospital for the blind. Every day he gives 120 dishes of soup with bread and meat to the poor. It is said that no one has ever applied to him in vain for help.

"Must I take off everything?" I asked.

"Everything? Oh, yes," said the attendant; "but you will find a sheet to wrap yourself in."

Just then a ghostly figure wound in a sheet emerged from a room and disappeared through another door at the further end of the cabin. She was a tall, thin woman with a bloodless face, and her back hair hung loose. I wouldn't have liked to meet her in a graveyard on a dark night. But she was completly enveloped, and that gave me comfort, for I felt blushingly squeamish. I might have been seen ten minutes afterward coming sheeted out of my room, and slinking toward the entrance of the bath I pushed open the door, and had scarcely seen that I was in a mere ante-room, and I was in the conditions of my grandma Eve before she took to a prons. An attendant had grabbed off the covering.
"Here," I said, huddling myself together, "I want that,"
"Oh, none of the ladies ever wear anything," was the response, in an expostulatory tone.
